Attendance, However, Is Small Because of Blinding Snowstorm

About 8,000 Lithuanians visited Hero Land yesterday when the day dedicated to their country was observed at the war banner. The attendance dropped for the afternoon and evening because of the storm that beat pedestrians against buildings and made even the trip from the entrances of the Grand Central Palace a feat calling for strength and speed.

The guests of honor yesterday were Dr. Hans Saks, Swiss Minister to the United States, and George S. Duarte, Portuguese Consul General, and his party. Neither made an address, but called many benches, where they congratulated the Allied cause.

Three Sketches Presented

The Little and Novelty theatres, both on the fourth floor, through sketches were presented in the afternoon and evening by the Amateur Comedy Club for the benefit of the Lithuanian Central War Relief Committee. The plays were "The Little Theatre," "The Little Theatre," and "The Little Theatre."

Drafted Austrians Barred at Yaphank

Director McCook Gets Order to Hold Men From Entraining

"Do not entrain Austrian citizens or Austrian declarants," was the order flashed yesterday morning to Philip J. McCook, draft director here, as a result of the declaration of war on Austria-Hungary. Provost Marshal General Crowder telegraphed the instructions to Adjutant General Sherrill, who forwarded the order from Albany by long distance telephone. It was one of the first acts of the government following the formality of a recognition of a state of war with the Dual Monarchy.

Among the 1,082 selected men who were ordered to leave for Camp Upton yesterday were twenty Austrians, from boards 1 to 12, in the Bronx. The men affected by the new order were about to entrain for camp, when representatives of Mr. McCook arrived to tell them not to go to Yaphank, but to remain in the city and report to their local boards within forty-eight hours for further instructions.

Mr. McCook received no additional information regarding the status of the Austrian nationals, he said. Draft officials speculated whether the new order was an indication that the 2,000 Austrian declarants from this city who have already been inducted into the National Army would be discharged. The Austrian declarants who were to be mobilized yesterday automatically became enemy aliens, and therefore ineligible for service in the army, as soon as war was declared.

The final party of the fifth contingent of the first draft will be in camp this afternoon, when approximately 1,705 men from this city. By that time only 10 per cent of the city's contribution to the first increment of the National Army will be awaiting orders for mobilization.

Would Make Harvard A Military College

Professor Suggests Admitting 16-Year-Old Students Without Examination

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 8.—In a statement this morning Professor Robert M. Johnston, of Harvard, chairman of the military committee, expressed his belief that that university should change its policy if the draft age is lowered to nineteen, and conduct a military college, admitting youths of sixteen who are physically fit. His statement, which appears in "The Harvard Crimson," is in part as follows:

"If the draft age were lowered to nineteen it seems highly probable that Harvard would be faced with the same sort of situation as that which has developed during these last three years at Oxford and Cambridge. I have been told that at Oxford at the present moment there are no more than 130 undergraduates, and at the same time the number of students who are physically fit is about 1,000. The same situation, if we should say the word, would be faced by Harvard. The dons, or, as we should say, the faculty, have had their incomes from all sources reduced at least one-half or two-thirds of most cases."

"I believe that at the very first symptoms of such a situation arising, the corporation and faculty should take radical measures—measures which would be entirely different from those which the university has taken at the same time to help the country. I think that there might be formed a military college with a three-year course on the same general lines as West Point. I would admit students of age sixteen, physically fit, without examination, merely dropping them on their failing to maintain a proper standard in their studies."

THE quickening practice was first rated at ten shots a minute, but the time was lengthened a half minute when it was found the mechanism of the Lee-Enfield rifle bothered men unused to it.

"A Day at Camp Upton" will be given by a selected company of 250 men of the 30th Infantry at the Hippodrome this afternoon and evening. Camp life will be shown from the arrival of the new recruit from the city to the hour of taps after a busy day of military activity. Lieutenant James E. Schuyler, Otto Brandt and Benjamin Schuyler are in charge of the show and Lieutenant James Loughborough is business manager. The proceeds will go toward building a big regimental auditorium and drill shed capable of seating the entire command of 2,500 men. It will cost about $20,000.

The division football championship was won to-day by the 506th Infantry eleven in a deciding match with the 302d Infantry. The score was 7 to 0 and the game was played in a blinding snowstorm.

The Rev. William P. Manning, rector of Trinity parish, has arrived here to act as chaplain of the 302d Infantry. He will conduct Sunday services and cooperate with the Y. M. C. A. in other work not yet arranged for.

Dr. A. D. Melvin
Chief of U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry Dies

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Dr. A. D. Melvin, chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry and well known to the country as the government's foremost figure in combating foot and mouth disease and other diseases of cattle, died at his home here last night of pulmonary hemorrhage. He was fifty-five years old.

Dr. Melvin's name was known to stock raisers, farmers, merchants and others the country over. His death was sudden, but not unexpected. He had been ill three years, but had worked at his desk until Thursday. A widow, a son and a daughter survive him.

He was a foremost advocate of the present inspection laws. His native state was Illinois, and he had been in the government service since 1886.

Dr. John R. Mohler, his assistant, is now acting chief of the bureau.

Crack Rifle Shots At Camp Upton

Non-Commissioned Officers Show Remarkable Skill
for Novices

CAMP UPTON, L. I., Dec. 8.—It has taken less than one week to establish the fact that Camp Upton's non-commissioned officers, at least 1,100 of them, are a hard shooting lot of men. This great contention gave a little housewarming on its new 200-target rifle range during the last few days and more than 140,000 steel bullets went crashing through the targets with such effect that the general average will be found to have been at least 70 per cent.

From the range officer, Major Vaillant, to the powers in headquarters on the hill, everybody was delighted and hopeful because men who had in most instances never handled a rifle before had been able to pepper the targets at
